of Governor Heyward, added its welcome to the south.

The threatening clouds of the early morning failed to loose their weight of rain, and although a chilling wind prevalled through the entire day, it failed to cool the ardor of the welcome.

Numerous extra trains brought their burden of Georgians from the surrounding country, and it was estimated that not less than 100,000 persons saw and welcomed the president.

A rece

Great Demonstration.

The presidential train came into the ne new station exactly on time. and as it appeared threading its way through the maze of tracks in the yards it was given a nolsy welcome by all the steam whistles in that part of the city. The demonstration increased the city. The demonstration increased in volume as the train came to a stop. Waiting to receive the president was the committee, headed by Governor Terrell and composed of Senator A. S. Clay, Congressman Livingston, Mayor J. G. Woodward and Bishop C. K. Nelson of the Episcopal diocese of Georgia. A committee of ladies, headed by Mrs. Terrell and Mrs. Clark Howell, was in readiness to receive Mrs. Roosevelt. As the train stopped, Governor Terrell and Senator Clay, accompanied Terrell and Senator Clay, accompanied by Mrs. Terrell and Mrs. Howell, stepped aboard and greeted the presi-dent and Mrs. Roosevelt. A moment later the party emerged and introduc-tions followed. Mrs. Roosevelt and her party departed almost impediately for party departed almost immediately for the governor's mansion, while the pres-ident and party were escorted to carriages in waiting back of the station. The line of march was quickly formed and the president and his escort started for Piedmont park, where the state fair is being held.

At the State Fair.

The distance from the station to the park is about three miles, and throughout the entire route, which ran along blatoric Peachtree street, crowds lined the sidewalks and gave the president round after round of cheers, which the executive smilingly acknowledged, hat in hand. It was a few minutes past 11 when the president reached the park, and again he was greeted by the noise of steam whistles from all the engines in the fair grounds and by the cheers of steam whistles from all the engines in the fair grounds and by the cheers of many thousands who were waiting his arrival. After a review of the Seventeenth infantry, which had recently returned to Fort McPherson from the Philippines, the president delivered his address. President Hughes of the Fair association, introduced Governor Terrell, who presented Mayor Woodward. Senator Clay introduced the president.
As the president rose to speak the throng cheered him heartly and waved their hats, umbrellas and handker-

Luncheon at Club House.

A luncheon followed the open-air speech at the fair grounds. From the speaker's stand the president was taken to the Piedmont club house, attended by a detachment of the Twelfth cavalry. About 100 guests were seated at the tables, which were profusely decorated with flowers and flags. Dur-ing the progress of the luncheon, John Temple Graves, editor of the Atlanta Daily News, addressed the president in a personal welcome as a man "whom it was a delight to meet aside from his official character." He referred to the sofficial character." He referred to the president as "Georgia's most illustrious grandson," which the president received with a broad smile. In closing, Mr. Graves spoke of the president as a man "in whom the statesman is greater than the politician, and the man greater than the president."

The illusion brought rounds of cheers as the president arose to reply.

President's Address.

The president said: "I told Governor Terrell I had a kind of ancestral reversionary right to his chair, because the first revolutionary governor of Georgia was my great-grandfather, Archibald Bullock, after whom one of my boys is named. No man could meet with such a reception as you have given as the president as you have given a reception as you have given as the president as you have given as the president and the president arose to reply.

morning. Five members of the crew jumped from the deck of the Sheldon to the tug. Before the other men on the steamer could make the leap, the tug was carried away by the gale and tremendous seas. The captain of the tug found it impossible to again get near the strand put back to Lorain and landed the men he had rescued. The tug captain confirmed the report that two members of the crew of the Sheldon had jumped overboard when the steamer struck. They were provided with life preservers, but were swept out to sea and lost. The steamer is now resting on a sandy bottom and is being pounded badly by the waves. Some five or six of the crew still remain on the boat.

The Cleyeland life saving crew left with a surf boat this morning for the scene of the wreek.

A tug with the life saving crew on boardthis afternoon succeeded in rescuing the men on the stranded steamer.

WORST AS YET UNKNOWN.

Twelve Lives Known to Have Been

As far as returns are obtainable tonight, elever vessels have been completely wrecked, and twelve to fifteen others were more or less severely damaged. Twelve lives are known to have been lost and, as the gale on southern Lake Huron and Lake Erie is still blowing fiercely tonight, it is feared that other losses both of life and property will be reported within the next twenty-four hours.

List of Known Wrecks.

The boats wrecked are as follows:
Tug Frank Perry, sunk off Boot island in the Cheneux group,
Steamer Joseph S. Fay, run ashore near Roger City, Mich., and broken to pieces by waves. The mate, Joseph Size, was drowned. The boat is owned by M. A. Bradley of Cleveland.
Bargo D. P. Rhodes, in tow of steamer Joseph S. Fay, driven ashore near Sheboygan, Mich.
Schooner Emma L. Nellson, stranded in Presque Isle harbor. The boat was badly damaged but the crew were saved.

Entire Crew Lost.

Tow Lines Broke.

The Minnedosa, on which, so far as known, the greatest loss of life occurred, was coming down from Fort William, Canada, bound for some lake Ontario port with a cargo of wheat. She was n town of the steamer Westmount, which was also towing the barge Metrose. The wo lines broke during the storm and the Melrose and Westmount were separated from the Minnedosa. They managed to make shelter at Harbor Beach late in the afternoon, and reported that they had seen the Minnedosa go down. She was in command of Captain Phillips, who had his wife aboard. The names of the other members of the crew are not known. The boat was owned by the Montreal Transportation company of Montreal.

The gale created such a sea as has not een experienced by sailors on the lakes a the last fifteen years. Many of the partial problem when he had been problem. large steel barges, which make nothing of the usual heavy seas prevalent at this time of the year, were compelled to seek shalter in the nearest ports.

The east shore of Lake Michigan suffered severely. Dock property was swept away at St. Joseph, South Haven, Holland, Grand Haven and Muskegon. The total damage done is estimated at $6.00, The Pere Marquette bridge, which spans the St. Joseph river near its mouth is in danger tonight of being swept away by the heavy swells, but it is believed that it will be saved inasmuch as the wind on southern Lake Michigan has abated and the sea is rapidly going down. Much summer resident property falong the east shore of Lake Michigan has been badly damaged.

Worst Storm in Years.

Grand Rapids, Mich., Oct. 20.—Reports from the harbors along the eastern shore of Lake Michigan indicate that last night's storm was the most terrific known on the lake for many years. The damage done to harbors, piers, etc., will amount to thousands of dollars.

At Holland the loss is estimated at $200,000. The south pier at this harbor has been entirely washed away and the lighthouse is badly wrecked.

Steam Barge Jos. Fay in Furious Storm on Lake Huron.

Rogers City, Mich., Oct. 20.—The steam barge Joseph Fay of Cleveland, owned by the Bradley estate, sprang a leak while fighting the furious gale on Lake Huron off this port, today, and was beached by Captain Fletcher at Forty Mile Point Light, six miles from this city. The tremendous seas washed off the pilot house after the steamer struck the beach and Captain Fletcher and most of the crew of fourteen men drifted ashore clinging to it. All the other members reached shore in safety clinging to wreckage, except Mate David Syze, who was drowned. The barge Rhodes, which had been in tow of the Fay, was parted from her consort during the storm and grave fears are feit for the safety of the barge and her crew of six men. It is thought that the crew may have succeeded in reaching the straits of Mackinew.

Navigation Suspended.

Detroit, Oct. 20.—The lower lakes were swept last night by the heaviest storm of the season. Navigation across the Lime Kilina crossing at the mouth of the Detroit river was entirely suspended today for all but light draft craft, the forty miles an hour southwest gale last night having lowered the stage of the water at the crossing to 16 feet 10 inches, the lowest in many years.

Lake Huron today was lashed by a forty-two mile gale off Alpena, while reports from Lake Eric today were that the wind blew thirty miles an hour.

On Lake Michigan last night a sixtymile gale prevailed.

Great Damage Done.

Marinette, Wis., Oct. 20.—The storm last night did $500,600 damage along the north shore of the Menominee river. Docks have been washed away, boat houses torn to pieces and thousands of tons of coal washed into the bay.

Many boats, tugs and gasoline launches were destroyed and quantities of logs in the storage booms were washed away, The seas ran right up on the streets of Marinette and Menominee. Fushermen along the shores of Green bay lost beavily in nets and boats. There was no loss of life, as vessels generally, it is believed, heeded the storm warnings.

Gale at Buffalo.

Lost During Storm.

Chicago, Oct. 20.—The storm which last night and today swept over northern Lake Michigan, Lake Huron and Lake Erie was one of the most severe in recent years.

As far as returns are obtainable tonight, cleven vessels have been completely wrecked, and twelve to fifteen others were more or less severely damaged. Twelve lives are known to have been lost and as the walker worthern.

London, Oct. 21 .- Many of the weekly London, Oct. 21.—Many of the weekly publications, including the Spectator, the Saturday Review and the Outlook, have articles expressing regret that the dean of Westminster should have sanctioned the interment in Westminster Abbey of the ashes of Sir Henry Irving, and denying to Irving greatness as an actor in the sense that Garrick was great. They argue that space in the abbey has become so limited that none but the nation's greatest should be interred there, and that it is impossible to regard Irving in that category.

that there are other actors of Irving's period as great and perhaps greater whom nobody would think of proposing for interment in the Abbey, and that in time to come it will be regretted that such a hasty decision was taken.

At the same time, however, all the articles speak in most generous terms of Irving's great talent and his personal character and repudiate any desire to detract from his acknowledged merit except as touching this question of deep national importance—interment in Westmportance-interment in West

A Parisian "Con" Game. (Chicago News.)

(Chicago News.)

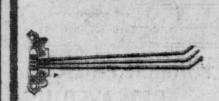

A pork butcher of the Latin quarter in Paris was asked for credit by a piteous little Italian boy with a violin. The lad told how his mother and sister were supperless in their garret. Not a sou had the poor little musician made that day. If he left his violin as a piedge would not the pork butcher let him have a string of sausages? The compassionate tradesman agreed at once and the boy, handing over his instrument, went off with a plentiful supper. The next day a well-dressed man, happening to look in at the shop, saw the violin, examined it and started back in surprise. Did the pork butcher know what a treasure he had? It was a Stradivarius, worth any amount.

Having heard the story of the Italian boy, the well-dressed gentleman proposed that the tradesman should buy the instrument. If he got it for $150 it would be dirt cheap, and the well-dressed person himself could sell it for him afterwards for ten times that amount. The boy came to pay for his sausages and to claim the viclim. "Sell it." he exclaimed when asked by the pork butcher. "Never, for it is the only treasure left me from my grandfather, to whose grandfather it had helonged before that."

At last, however, having gone home to consult his mother, he agreed. Embracing his beloved violin, with tears in his eyes, he parted with it for $30. The supposed amateur never showed up. The pork butcher took the violin to a dealer, who pronounced it to be worth 75 cents. ---
